

Heritage tourism around The Castles Route of Jaén with a passport and benefits for visitors

LOCALIZACIÓN: Province of Jaén

DURATION: 1'31"

SUMMARY: A passport where visitors will put the stamps of the places they visit, in this case, they will visit castles instead of countries. This and other tourism resources are part of Castles and Battles Route in Jaén, the province which counts on a higher number of fortresses in Spain. This document offers advantages to their owners.

VTR:

The province of Jaén is the one that counts on the highest number of fortresses in Spain. A route travels through the most significant castles and battle scenarios as Bailén or Navas de Tolosa. A travel in time with passport included.

Vicente López
Provincial tourism technician

"It is the classic document where you put stamps and offers advantages for both the traveller and the destination."

More than 20 castles and fortresses are part of this journey that includes the Castle of Alcaudete.

Sonido ambiente

"A pretty complete castle as it contains almost all the rooms a castle should have."

A route where other tourism resources are also implied, as accommodations which offer discounts to the owners of this passport.

Daniel Ortega
Vía Verde del Aceite
Apartments

"Making the client feeling attracted not just by the service we offer but also by that discount in the Castles and Battles Route."

Pedro Antonio García
Director of the Europa Hotel

"Clients of Castles and Battles must know that they are positively differentiated."

A way to get to know this route more deeply, including places like the Fortress of La Mota in Alcalá la Real.

María Eugenia Gil
Fortress of La Mota

"It is a wonderful tool that promotes the flow of tourists between the different tourism resources of the route."

Tourists

"It is a privilege, you are visiting the castles of the towns and at the same time you obtain discounts to eat, to take local products with you."

"I think that the passport is a great idea because it has permitted me getting to know other castles and fortresses which I didn't know that even existed, and the truth is that I am eager to know and visit them."

A document that makes us travel in time, helping us to reveal the secrets hidden by these walls.
